

Ponder It:

The Double Jeopardy Clause is a legal provision that says a person cannot be charged with the same crime twice. Once someone has been tried and either acquitted or charged with a crime, that person cannot be called into court and prosecuted again for that offense. One of the reasons this provision exists is to uphold the finality and integrity of the court. Likewise, the finality and integrity of Christ's work means no one can bring a charge against you again, not even your own conscience. All charges have been brought and the trial is over. God has justified and no one can condemn... forever. AJ
